

My name is Maddie, I am from North Wales and will shortly be starting my 3rd year at Harper and Keele Veterinary School.

Despite not coming from a farming background I had the opportunity to work on a local farm before university which led to me develop a keen interest in agriculture with a particular interest in the environmental sustainability of food production.

Throughout my time at university my interest in livestock medicine has only grown and I would like to work in large or mixed animal practice in the future.
